

When to Seek Infertility Treatment

You may want to seek care from a fertility specialist if you:

- Are over age 35 and have been unable to conceive after six months of unprotected sex
- Have been unable to get pregnant after 12 months of unprotected sex
- Have infertility risk factors including:
 - A medical condition such as endometriosis, fibroids, or polycystic ovary syndrome (PCOS)
 - Concerns about your reproductive health
 - Repeated miscarriages
 - Suspected or known male infertility
 - You have undergone cancer treatment
- If you are single and are interested in starting a family
- If you are part of an LGBTQ+ couple seeking fertility options

Where Your Journey to Parenthood Begins

Expert Fertility Specialists Providing Compassionate Care and Counseling

Building One Family at a Time

If you have been trying to have a baby without success, Duke fertility specialists can help you understand your options. We diagnose the barriers that may be standing in your way, provide thoughtful counsel, and make treatment recommendations. We also facilitate other ways to grow your family that align with your situation.

Available Services

Fertility Preservation

You may choose to freeze eggs, embryos, or sperm for transfer at a later date.

Fertility Evaluation and Testing

Our team of fertility specialists can evaluate your situation, conduct tests to determine if there is an underlying cause of your infertility, and recommend a range of infertility treatments to help you conceive and have a baby.

Comprehensive Stress Reduction Program

Infertility can cause anxiety and put stress on relationships. Our psychologist can help you with this process through consultations, individual and couple support groups, and more.

Treatment for All Medical Conditions Related to Infertility

If you have endometriosis, fibroids, or polycystic ovary syndrome, our reproductive endocrinologists will recommend the appropriate treatment to decrease your pain and improve your fertility. We can also help you experience relief if you have troublesome symptoms during the hormonal transition to menopause.

Egg/Sperm Donation

Individuals or couples who need a donor egg because of age or other factors can arrange to have a friend or relative act as an egg donor or apply to be matched with someone from the local area who has volunteered to be an anonymous egg donor.

Gestational Carrier Program

If you want to work with a surrogate – meaning another person carries and delivers a child for you – we will perform medical and psychological screening to verify your gestational carrier is appropriate and well prepared for this experience. We also help you contact local legal resources to handle all the appropriate legal arrangements.
